Key Findings. The American Rescue Plan Act's restriction on states' Fiscal Recovery Funds being used to directly or indirectly offset a net tax cut is vague and raises difficult questions of interpretation and application. A broad interpretation of this prohibition may be unconstitutional. This restriction potentially implicates a wide range of tax decisions, not just rate reductions but ...

The American Rescue Plan (ARP) sends $350 billion to state and local governments with very few strings attached. Unlike the CARES Act, which originally restricted spending to pandemic-related expenses, states can use ARP dollars to respond to the public health emergency, replace lost tax revenue, offset the pandemic's negative economic effects, or invest in infrastructure.

History Revolutionary period. The history of the Department of the Treasury began in the turmoil of the American Revolution, when the Continental Congress at Philadelphia deliberated the crucial issue of financing a war of independence against Great Britain. The Congress had no power to levy and collect taxes, nor was there a tangible basis for securing funds from foreign investors or governments.
