Mathematics Magazine accepts Articles as well as contributions to the Problems and Solutions. In addition to expository pieces, we accept a limited number of puzzles, poems, Proofs Without Words, and other miscellanea. A manuscript's publishability depends as much on the quality of exposition as on the mathematical significance.

Mixed Integer Linear Programming problems are generally solved using a linear-programming based branch-and-bound algorithm. Overview. Basic LP-based branch-and-bound can be described as follows. We begin with the original MIP. Not knowing how to solve this problem directly, we remove all of the integrality restrictions.
